

Contents

Introduction	5
1. The concept, objectives and methodology	7
2. European trends in agriculture	13
2.1. Common Agricultural Policy	13
2.2. Contemporary features of the Central-Eastern European agriculture	19
2.3. Examples of transformations in the farming sector in selected regions of Central-Eastern Europe	21
2.3.1. Chelm-Zamość region (Poland)	22
2.3.2. Timis region (Romania)	26
2.3.3. Bacs-Kiskun region (Hungary)	29
2.4. Conclusions for Vojvodina	33
3. Diagnosis of agriculture of Vojvodina	35
3.1. General overview of Serbian agriculture	35
3.2. The structure and the trends of change in the agricultural sector of Vojvodina	37
3.2.1. Agricultural population	39
3.2.2. Crop production	43
3.2.3. Animal production	52
3.3. Barriers to the development of the agricultural sector of Vojvodina	59
4. Perspectives for the agricultural sector in Vojvodina	63
4.1. Perspectives for the agriculture of Vojvodina in the light of results from the EDORA project	63
4.2. Perspectives for the agriculture of Vojvodina in the light of results from the TERESA project	71

4.3. Perspectives for the agriculture of Vojvodina in the light of results from the EURURALIS project	76
4.4. Perspectives for the agriculture of Vojvodina in the light of results from the CEEC AGRIPOLICY project	81
4.5. Scenarios, challenges and recommendation for the agriculture of Vojvodina resulting from the analysis of projects	83
5. Contemporary state and perspectives of development for agriculture of Vojvodina – output from the field study	87
6. Future perspectives for Vojvodina agriculture	99
6.1. Agricultural enterprises	101
6.2. Larger family farms	102
6.3. Small farms	103
7. Challenges in the Preparatory period ahead of the European Union accession	105
8. Conclusions and recommendations for the agriculture of Vojvodina	109
References	111